Egypt

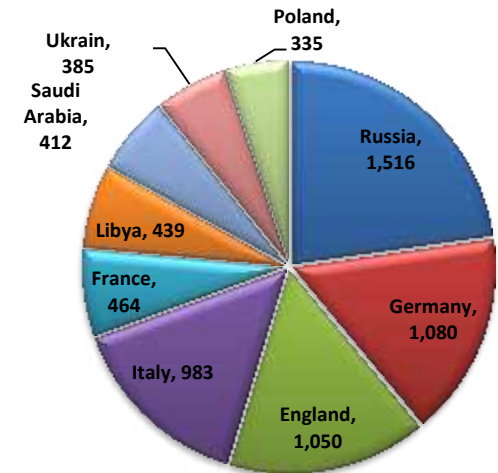

- The statistics showed that 86% from Egypt's visits were for recreational tourism.
- 4.13 billion LE (US$724 million) were invested in Egypt's tourism in 2006-2007, the same period when almost 10 million foreign visitors brought US$ 8 billion to the country's budget. More than 80% of tourists were coming from Europe
- The plans for the tourism's future are big and promising; according to the Ministry of Tourism, till 2011 Egypt's purpose is to receive 14 million of tourists on year, the increasing of the hotel rooms from 175,000 in present, to 240,000 in the next four years.
- LE41.8 billion are stipulated to be invested in tourism, from the private sector, in the next five years. More, the WTO (World Tourism Organization) estimates that in 2020 the number of the tourists coming from China and India in Egypt it will touch about 150 million persons.
- More very important touristic projects are in plan for the Red Sea zone, for Marsa Alam and on the Egypt's North Coast, projects that include residential units, recreational parks and luxurious hotels.
- ITR (International Tourism Revenues) is estimated to reach 12 billion US$, and Egypt's ITA (International Tourist Arrivals) 14 million US$, in the next four years.
- But, to touch all of these targets, the Egypt's government works very seriously to improve the tourism's facilities, to modernize the aviation infrastructure and to develop the airports.

Egypt -Tourism Overview

- Tourism Overview

The latest official data show the extent of the downturn in tourism in the wake of the political crisis earlier in 2011. Although total tourist arrivals were up favourably in January, by almost 9% year-on-year (y-o-y), visitor numbers fell 80% and 60% y-o-y respectively in February and March 2011. The sharp falls were largely the result of an 83% y-o-y decline in arrivals from European source markets in February and a 68% fall in March. Visitors from Middle East countries also declined 71% and 31% y-o-y respectively over the same two-month period.

Hospitality

- Early indications of the severe fallout for the hospitality sector from the recent political crisis come from official figures for Q111. Despite total tourism nights increasing a strong 18% y-o-y in January, overnight stays fell more than 50% y-o-y in February and an even larger 65% y-o-y in the following month. With regard to the key source region, nights attributed to European tourists declined around 60% and 70% y-o-y respectively in February and March. Reports indicate that hotel occupancy rates picked up somewhat in April, but rates in the key Red Sea resorts of Hurghada and remained less than 40%. Cairo also continues to lag behind the rest of the country, with mostly business visitors to the capital.

Bird Flu Update

- Since our last report there has been a relatively sharp increase in the number of human infections and deaths in Egypt caused from the H5N1 (bird flu) virus – although the absolute numbers remain quite low. Figures published in May 2011 by the World Health Organization (WHO) show Egypt has confirmed 47 human deaths caused from the virus (seven new deaths since February), out of 143 (previously 122) known human infections in the country, the largest number outside Asia.

Forecast Scenario

- Although the dominant threat to tourism is political unrest, moderate economic recovery in major source markets should help tourist numbers recover in the latter part of 2011. In the eurozone, our revised forecasts are for economic growth of 1.8% in 2011 (up marginally on growth in 2010), with the same growth rate expected in 2012. Outside the eurozone, our revised economic growth forecasts for the UK – a key market for inbound tourism – stand at 1.7% and 2.2% in 2011 and 2012 respectively (after growth estimated at 1.3% in 2010). An added concern for the sector is regional political instability, particularly in neighbouring Libya, which will add to the perceived risk of holidaying in Egypt. Taking account of the most recent tourist data, we have revised our forecast for foreign tourist arrivals in 2011 and now expect an annual fall of around 20%. Assuming political stability returns to Egypt, full recovery in the sector, meanwhile, is unlikely to take place until 2012.

Hilton Worldwide

- In April, Hilton Worldwide opened the 164-unit Hilton Zamalek Residence Cairo, overlooking the River Nile. Hilton has a management agreement with Cairo-based Safir El Zamalek Hotel Company on the hotel, which underwent considerable renovation. Hilton plans to add a number of other properties over the next few years to its portfolio across the country, underpinning the confidence it has in the Egyptian tourism market.
